

Caring for Our Caregivers

Being a caregiver is a powerful responsibility and a great undertaking. Today, one in every five adults are caregivers, and most caregivers have another job on top of the work they do for their loved ones.

Caregivers help with a plethora of tasks ranging from housework to medical care to transportation. It's important that those who are caring for a loved one receive the help they need as well.

By caring for our caregivers, we can partner with families to create a more effective system of support. Learn more about how to best support the caregivers in your life, as well as the resources available through The Senior Alliance.
