

Your Voice in Lansing: Why Michigan's MI Choice and Silver Key Decisions Matter for You and Your Loved Ones

Did you know Michigan families with aging members have fewer in-home care options than families in most other states? The reason is driven by budgeting choices made in Lansing. Only around 30% of Michigan's Medicaid long-term care dollars are directed to Home and Community-Based Services (HCBS), while the other 70% goes to institutional care. By comparison, the national average for Medicaid HCBS spending is 53%. What does this reduced spending on HCBS mean for you and your loved ones? It means that individuals who need food, personal care, and transportation assistance are placed on waiting lists, and those who want to stay in their homes have no choice but to move into nursing homes.
